

Citizens Memorial Hospital Emergency Medical Services

Annual Field Training Officer Course

Are you an exceptional employee that delivers compassionate care? Do you want to take the first step in professional development beyond being an EMT or Paramedic?

Field Training Officers (FTOs) are often the first significant contact made between new employees and CMH EMS. New employees are the future of our department. FTOs are the most influential part of the new employee process. They provide guidance and are an example of what we want the ideal CMH EMS employee to be like. Being a FTO can be a considerable commitment but it can be very rewarding.

FTOs also serve as Subject Matter Experts (SMEs). Clinical performance is driven by protocols. Gaps between protocols and performance are identified through quality review. The identified gaps are corrected through education. As a SME, you will influence protocol development in your identified subject area, participate in quality review of those protocols, and assist in educating the department in your focus area.

If you are willing to give up some time on the couch watching TV to improve CMH EMS and yourself, please attend this year's FTO class.
